Dick Wilson, Jr. is an Atlanta, Georgia native and has been practicing law in metropolitan Atlanta since 1972. His practice is primarily related to general civil litigation with heavy emphasis in business and real estate related litigation, zoning, land use and appellate practice.

Dick has been lead counsel in both the trial and appellate courts on many precedent setting land use cases and has lectured before many continuing legal education groups as well as the American Land Planners Association and the Georgia Association of Zoning Administrators.

Prior to joining Tatum Hillman Hickerson & Powell, LLP, Dick was an owner Wilson Brock & Irby, LLC, a firm which he established in 1995.

Dick's chosen field of practice is and has been civil litigation, and he has been honored by a peer selection to be included in the "Best Lawyers in America" publication (2008, 2009). Dick was also recognized as a 2009 Georgia Super Lawyer.
